For the purpose of trapping the press, the British public have been grossly misinformed by the statement of Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the Admiralty, that the British Empire is the greatest empire of the world.

For the purpose of trapping the tappers, the following dispatch prepared:

"PETROGRAD, Nov. 27.—"Russian dreadnaught Fliba, formerly the Ismail, striking a mine."

THANKS.
For songs we've sung and deeds we've done,
Though weak we be and small

If done aright and by thy might,
We thank Thee, Lord of all.

For winds that sweep and stars that keep
The sky lit up so bright,
For friends so dear and truth so clear
We praise Thee with delight.

For rain and shine and ev'ry sign
Of Providential ways—
For falling leaf and garnered sheaf
Ascends our thankful praise.

For peace's reign in our domain
And still for duty's call
For griefs outgrown and mercies shown
We thank Thee Lord of all.

The Searchlight

No person traveling on an interstate common carrier will hereafter be compelled to swallow more than one hundred bacteria with every cubic centimeter of water that he consumes while en route. This safeguard to the public health is contained in a recent promulgation of the surgeon general of the public health service, following a careful study of the drinking water supplied to passengers on common carriers, by a federal com-

The average layman, who regards a bacteria as a deadly little monster, is apt to think that if he is going to be permitted to swallow a hundred of them with every mouthful of water, he might just as well swallow a few thousand and make a good job of it. This, however, is not the case. A healthy organism can easily throw off a limited number of bacteria, and they are dangerous only in very large numbers.

Most persons drink a great deal of water that contains more than a hundred bacteria to the cubic centimeter, and in setting a standard for common carriers it is necessary to take into account the fact that they are compelled to obtain the water from all sorts of sources, and that they cannot be put to the expense of purifying it without extra compensation. Also there is much more probability that a moderate standard will be lived up to, and the report of the commission intimates that the standard will probably be raised as

Uses for Small Electric Signs.

The great electrical sign as a means of commercial advertising has been most fully exploited in all large American cities; but the possibilities of small signs

American cities, but the possibilities of small electrical signs are just beginning to be realized. One of these is in the use of lighted signs for those using narrow thoroughfares, and for directions in buildings and other public places. An ordinary painted sign, even if conspicuously placed, will be overlooked by a large number of persons because of the multiplicity of typed information that assaults his gaze on every side. Not reading signs becomes a habit, which it requires an effort to overcome. A fresh-paint sign in a public place seldom serves to prevent a number of sticky contacts and explosive remarks, especially if the light is a trifle dim, but an electric warning would penetrate the cranial ivory of the most preoccupied individual.

Then, too, there is the possibility of using electrical signs for professional advertisements. An electrical sign on a doctor's door would not only be a source of profit to the doctor, but a God-send to some one in immediate and pressing need of his assistance. Even the suburban dweller might well use a small electric sign to let the guest know which is his house, and any one who has spent a bad half hour trying to read the numbers on suburban houses or to decide which is the street and which is the alley would appreciate the innovation. Emergency entrances to hospitals, fire alarm boxes and numerous other useful and nec-alarm boxes and numerous other necessities and conveniences might be made many times more available by the use of electrical signs. The field is large, and the cost of maintaining such apparatus surprisingly small.

Ducks Prevent Malaria.
To the average citizen, the humble ducks seems to play a purely passive part in maintaining human life, and means nothing but a dollar and a quarter a plate or something difficult to carve. But an American doctor has made the important discovery that ducks are among the most effective enemies of the insects that endanger human life in all low and marshy countries. The mosquito is well-known to be the chief agent in the dissemination of yellow fever and malarial germs.

and sanitarians have devised many and devious ways of destroying these insects in the laral stage, when they live in the water and are popularly known as "wigglers." Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in tropical countries screening all open

Now the duck comes forward as the most ferocious and implacable natural enemy which the wiggler has. With his spoon-like mandibles, edged with tiny, steel-like teeth, a common domestic duck will fairly feed on

As a test, a common domestic duck will fairly dredge a pond of all its wiggler inhabitants. In the experiments which have been tried, ordinary mallards were used, and the wiggler population was allowed to multiply before the ducks were placed in the pond. Goldfish were also tried first as exterminators, but they seemed to live happily with the wigglers. The ducks, however, quickly cleaned up the wigglers and then started in on the gold fish. In the opinion of those who conducted the experiments, the mallard has proved his right to a higher destiny than the platter, and will probably hereafter be a feature, both useful and ornamental of all ponds and waterways in tropical cities.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 28.—The football teams of the United States Army and Navy met today in the annual service contest. Always an interesting struggle from both a tactical and a financial standpoint, the game holds promise of unusual thrills this year. The Middles are anticipated by a desire to avenge the unexpected and overwhelming defeat administered by the Cadets at New York last season, while the soldiers are determined to continue the successful record of the year ago today.

Thousands of visitors are here for the game. More than 35,000 tickets were sold and the expected attendance would surpass that of any previous game. A few tickets were secured by speculation, despite the rules for the distribution of seats, and these brought almost prohibitive prices. Weather conditions were ideal.

League Decides to Retain Kansas City on Pledge of Business Men to Lend Support—Artie Hoffman Tipped to Manage Brooklyn Team

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—There will be no change in the 1915 circuit of the Federal League, it was announced, before club owners met today to discuss the league's annual meeting which opened here today.

Kansas City, which was regarded as a disappointment last season, will retain its franchise, James A. Gilmore, president of the league, announced. Business men of the city, who have been having the club transferred and had promised they would support it, it is planned, President Gilmore said, to build a new park near the business district of the city.

The Indians have come along rapidly lately, getting away to a lead in the league. They defeated Dickinson college by a large score two weeks ago, and today they will play the All-Star Eleven in the best game now that it has been in this season, and with the advantage of team work, the Redskins are expected to beat the all-stars. Basketball Game at Athletic Club

The final practice contest of the season for the Athletic club basketball team will be played tonight, when the first team takes on the second. Some two weeks ago, the squad was divided into four teams, and games were played between two pairs on Saturday night two weeks ago, and also last week.

It had been planned to have the winners of these two teams meet tonight, but a new scheme has been substituted. The first team, composed of Smith, Forbes, Duhard, Weaver and Ed Carter will compose the first team, while Abbott, Harrison, Martin, Taylor, Graves, Joe and Carter will compose the second team. The regular season opens a week from Saturday when the Chattanooga Tigers come here for a game.

Exendine Tipped to Coach Carlisle

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28.—The Washington and Jefferson football team played against Georgetown at the University of the District of Columbia today. The game was a close one, with the Redskins leading for most of the afternoon.

Exendine is a former Pittsburg player and served his first year at Georgetown this season. He was the first to be selected by the team, and he is expected to remain here for another season. According to his report, he preferred to take the work at his alma mater.
